

When a gigolo is shot, to death in the bedroom of a beautiful girl, it raises some perplexing problems for Detective Kenny Kilkeny. Why, for example, would a man steal the license plates off his own car? Why should an innocent young professor come to the murder room ... and then conceal a key to the crime? Why was a phantom secretary hiding in the closet near the murdered man? Was there really money to be made selling glass eyes for stuffed ducks? Why would a beautiful girl ask her lover to kill her? As if these questions—and a hundred others—werent enough to drive Kilkeny crazy—there were three exceedingly strange characters to plague him : a girl named Rux, a man named Vanizol, and the weirdest of all—Mr. Whisk! It was a tough case, but so are they all when the word goes out—PARISIAN PLAYBOY SHOT IN N. Y. BEAUTYS BOUDOIR ... PHANTOM SECRETARY SEEKS SUICIDE...MYSTERY REDHEAD FOUND... — The papers shouted SCANDAL!—but the sirens shrieked MURDER!
